Moss and mould roof treating is an affordable solution for all home owners, to ensure your roof gets protection against the damaging effect of moss and lichen spores. Even though moss and mould killer can be used to remove growth through what we call a self cleaning process, it's primarily designed to prevent the growth from happening in the first place. Treating your roof on an average of 2 years can prolong the life expectancy of your roof, and make sure it looks and stays clean all year around.
